The world's largest yellow rubber duck was created by the Dutch artist Florentijn Hofman in 2007, 16.5 meters tall and weighing over 600 kg. Since 2007, several ducks of different sizes have been seen in different cities around the world, such as Amsterdam (The Netherlands), Lommel (Belgium), Osaka (Japan), Sydney (Australia), São Paulo (Brazil) and Hong Kong (China) until June 9, 2013. Florentijn Hofman created the great work to “spread joy around the world.” As we know, the yellow duck is the rubber duck toy used by children worldwide during bath time. He would like to recall everyone's childhood memories by displaying the duck in 14 cities, starting in his own Amsterdam, Netherlands.

From September 19 in 2013, the giant rubber duck will be making its nest on the waters of Kaohsiung Harbor in southern Taiwan for one month and then travel north to Taoyuan and finally settle for a long stay in Keelung. Kaohsiung will expect to draw more than 3 million visitors to the harbor. Taiwan's Rubber Duck, a newly built one, is the largest one to be displayed in Asia. It is said that the duck will bring NT$1 billion for local businesses, including related products, like T-shirts, towels, badges, fans, and postcards, you name it. Tour packages based on the duck's visit will be popular, too. If you are interested in seeing the large toy, take some time to have a look. You sure will feel great joy and happiness.

Dear May-line,

How long has it been since I last wrote you? Too long, I know. The fact is that I've been busy with my schoolwork and clubs.

Besides homework, as you know, I join the volleyball team and I'm also the leader of the guitar club. Last semester, we practiced volleyball at least three times a week. That kept me busy enough! We did very well and got second place at the championships in December.

For the guitar club, I held a live concert for the school this past March. The concert was great, and I was glad I spent all that time on it.

With summer vacation not far away, I hope we can get together sometime. Can you come to Taichung and stay over for a few days? I can't wait to see you again!

Your friend,
Yvonee
